

The latest in cyber risks, disclosing a complication, Email not displaying correctly?
social media in the work place and more... View it in your browser.

Do you know about Meltdown and Spectre?

There is never a dull moment in the world of cyber security. 2018 brings new challenges, including the security flaws dubbed Meltdown and Spectre. Read more.

Should you disclose an unforeseen complication to your patient?

Failure to disclose a complication not only breaches the code of professional ethics, but also destroys the trust in the physician-patient relationship and exposes physicians to an increased risk of litigation should the complication be discovered by the patient at a later point. Read more.

Can employers monitor the social media activity of current or prospective employees? (Video)

In this video Attorney Matt Gilligan will explore some of the challenges that an employer faces when it tries to control the use of social media in the workplace. Watch now.

Do you have trouble collecting payment from patients at the time of service?

Today's high deductible health plans mean patients are less likely to satisfy their deductibles until well into the plan year. The best ways to ensure your medical practice collects from patients is to... read more.

The criminalization of clinical decision making, what do you need to know?

Like worthless services, lack of medical necessity is being used more frequently and aggressively to support criminal healthcare fraud prosecutions... read more.

Connect with us

Copyright © 2018, All rights reserved.

